destinations

Life is a journey - our background and our experiences plus our dreams determine who we become, what we do, and where we live. Our ultimate destinations vary as much as we as individuals do, but while together at the Annie Wright School our paths will cross and connect. Our time in this community will always influence where we go and what we become in the future.

Our students, especially this year's graduating class, illustrate the diverse, global nature of our school. Our title, *desti*NATIONS, reflects the mixture of nationalities, talents, and goals of our students, staff, and families.

We come from many places - the U.S., Europe, Asia, Africa...

We practice many faiths - Christian, Muslim, Jewish, Buddhist ...

We plan many futures - doctors, actors, parents, teachers...

We celebrate the differences that make us unique, the variety of experiences we share, and the many directions we will go after we leave AWS.

GROWING LEARNING

SHARING

Students, Families, Faculty and Staff,

What a wonderful theme for this yearbook! As late as mid-August I had no idea that I would be at Annie Wright, coming to know you and this terrific place. Fortunately, I was asked to join you for the year, and I am loving getting to know the AWS community.

You are my destination for the year. However, you are far more than that - as is the case with all good destinations. You are part of a journey. Life is all about the journey. This year my journey is about coming to understand this very unique school.

And what have I found? Annie is a mix of great proportions: equal amounts of talent, skill, and dedication that combine with a huge open heart that seeks to find the unique and best in each of us. We come from ten nations, eight states, and hundreds of houses in dozens of communities. We are of many faiths and political stripes, yet we all see this as our home every day we are here. Annie Wright is our daily destination and part of our life's journey.

As you look through these pages and reflect upon this year, think of the paths you have chosen to take, for those choices identify your own personal destination. Travel well, and remember this year.

Fifth grader Margaux Arntson, left, and her classmates tackle writing assignments in Mr. Davidson's Language Arts class.

DEDICATION

Each day the world shrinks. The internet, cell phones, and planes connect us to people, places, and experiences few imagined years ago. At AWS we go global daily. We may see kimchi in the salad bar; friends from four countries hanging out; a bake sale to raise money for a community well in South America; or students learning a new language in class.

We dedicate this annual to the Foreign Language Departments, and those teachers who open our eyes to the many people, places and cultures of the world.

A World of Diversity

Meg Billings, Paul Sevigny, and Tenny Graupensperger teach English as a Second Language to the many foreign boarding students in the Upper School.

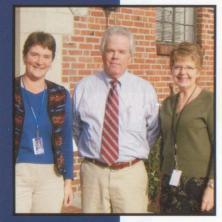

Nora de Sandoval teaches Spanish to all students in the Lower School. Her many students range from Pre-K through Fifth grade.

The Middle School Foreign Language Department includes Japanese teacher, Carolyn Lyson, Latin and Spanish teacher, Dan Clouse, and French teacher. Joy Phelps.

How many languages do you speak?

I can speak two languages: English, and Spanish.

Maria Peterson 2nd I can speak three languages: English,

Sami Anderson 8th I can speak three languages: English, Filipino and Spanish.

Spanish and French.

I can speak four languages: Japanese, English, Cantonese and Mandarin. Mindy Chen 12th

The Upper School Foreign Language Department includes Carolyn Lyson teaching Japanese, Connie Rossi teaching Spanish, and Belinda Lartey teaching French.
